LTL Freight Shipping Enhancements

Get Started >

Introducing the next big little thing in freight shipping.

To give you the best possible LTL freight shipping experience, FedEx is rolling out a number of relatively small enhancements that will have a huge impact on your shipping transparency, accuracy and peace of mind.

This includes the introduction of a new shipping label — an alternative to the traditional Bill of Lading (BOL) — that gives you the ability to track individual pallets in a shipment.

New Shipping Label

This shipping label is a next-generation enhancement that's redefining electronic shipping. Each pallet in your shipment receives its own shipping label and unique 12-digit tracking number — improving tracking and visibility from dock to delivery.

Please note: Freight shipments are changing to a 12-digit tracking number from a 9-digit tracking number.

Handheld Technology Enhancements

When drivers arrive to pick up freight, they can now scan both 1D and 2D barcodes on the shipping label. This gives customers immediate access to their 12-digit tracking numbers, improves visibility and tracking, and reduces manual data entry errors.

Enhanced Shipping and Driver Notifications

FedEx Freight has developed a more robust notification system that gives you real-time access to details about the pickup of your shipment. You can expect a notification when:

- Pickup is scheduled
- Driver is assigned
- Drive is en route
- Driver has arrived
- Pickup is complete/driver has departed

Tracking and Visibility

Now, each shipment has a unique 12-digit tracking number for each pallet — giving you a better handle on each piece of your shipment, from dock to delivery. Before, your shipment was assigned one Bill of Lading (BOL) and one tracking number — even if it comprised multiple pallets. That's all changed now, thanks to advanced FedEx Freight paperless tracking enhancements such as the new shipping label.

Invoices

We've created a number of important enhancements to our invoicing system, making the billing and payment processes faster, easier, more accurate and more transparent. Your shipment information now flows directly from the scanned shipping label to FedEx rating and invoicing departments. Also, all of your pallet tracking numbers are now prominently displayed on invoices for easy reference and filing. You can even view, pay and request adjustments to your invoices at any time through a secure third-party website.
