FedEx Racing — Commitment to Community

Since its founding in 2005, the FedEx Racing program has made a commitment to community service a priority and team hallmark. Through national initiatives with organizations such as the March of Dimes, Safe Kids Worldwide, The Salvation Army and the American Red Cross, and in cooperation with local human service organizations, FedEx Racing has touched the lives of thousands of individuals and offered much needed support in the form of charitable contributions and the volunteerism of FedEx team members.

During the FedEx Cares race weekend at Watkins Glen International, Denny Hamlin participated in a demonstration about the dangers of distracted walking with Safe Kids Worldwide and the Watkins Glen Kids Club.

2019: Denny Hamlin and the FedEx Racing Team used back-to-school season to showcase a special FedEx Cares message on the #11 race car. Safe Kids Worldwide, a nonprofit organization working to protect kids on the road, at home and at play, adorned the FedEx Toyota for the August road course race at Watkins Glen (N.Y.) International. The design, which was unveiled on FedEx and Hamlin's social media channels, used whimsical graphics to promote pedestrian safety. A New York City media tour, featuring Hamlin and Safe Kids President Torine Creppy, supported the unveiling. On race day morning, Hamlin joined Safe Kids and the Watkins Glen Kids Club in a demonstration of the dangers of distracted walking.

2018: Denny Hamlin and the FedEx Racing Team raced a special #11 FedEx Cares paint scheme at Daytona International Speedway (Fla.) in July that spotlighted the relationship between FedEx and Team Rubicon, a military veteran-led disaster response organization of more than 85,000 volunteers that provide immediate relief to areas around the country affected by natural disasters. The paint scheme was unveiled leading into Memorial Day race weekend, where Team Rubicon volunteers joined Hamlin to show off the military-inspired livery and participate in "over-the-wall" pit crew training. In advance of the #11 FedEx Cares and Team Rubicon scheme hitting the track at Daytona for the Coke Zero Sugar 400, Hamlin, the entire #11 FedEx Racing crew and local FedEx team members participated in an official Team Rubicon disaster preparedness training exercise in the infield of the 2.5-mile speedway.

The Delivering Laps for FedEx Cares program that began in 2017 continued into the 2018 season, with the addition of a new matching program. The Denny Hamlin Foundation offered to match the total donation amount to help drive additional support for Safe Kids Worldwide. Hamlin's 380 laps led during the season resulted in an $84,360 donation.

Hamlin drove a special #11 FedEx Cares Toyota at Daytona International Speedway (Fla.) for the Coke Zero Sugar 400. The scheme was inspired by military veterans who now volunteer with Team Rubicon to help local communities in time of natural disaster.

2017: All season long, FedEx tied the on-track performance of the #11 FedEx Toyota to its efforts to improve road safety through a new program, Delivering Laps for FedEx Cares, by donating $111 for each lap Hamlin led and $11,000 for each race victory to Safe Kids Worldwide. After leading 710 laps and capturing two Cup Series wins in 2017, FedEx donated $100,810 to Safe Kids in the program's inaugural year. Hamlin and the entire FedEx Racing crew also supported Safe Kids during National Walk to School Day on October 4, and they led more than 200 students to class at Cotswold Elementary School in Charlotte, N.C., while teaching them the importance of pedestrian safety in the process.

Hamlin also ran a special #11 FedEx Cares paint scheme for the 24th running of the Brickyard 400 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway that he designed with 22-year FedEx Team Member Rachee Powell, an active FedEx Cares supporter and volunteer within her local community. Their design was unveiled at an exclusive event at the FedEx Indianapolis hub – the second largest FedEx Express hub in the United States – where Hamlin and FedEx team members also participated in a donation drive for Gleaners Food Bank of Indiana.

Hamlin drove the #11 FedEx Cares Toyota to a second-place finish at Sonoma Raceway in 2016.

2016: Denny Hamlin drove a one-of-a-kind #11 FedEx Cares paint scheme at the event in Sonoma Raceway in June. The car featured five charitable organizations — JA Worldwide, Safe Kids Worldwide, National Urban League, the USO and the National Fish & Wildlife Foundation — and the special design was unveiled via 360 virtual reality video during a luncheon in downtown San Francisco. Additionally, Hamlin joined FedEx Team Members and San Francisco 49ers running back Carlos Hyde for a special cleanup project in conjunction with the National Fish & Wildlife Foundation at Battery East, a park adjacent to the Golden Gate Bridge.

benefitting Autism Speaks weekend at Dover International Speedway in May, Hamlin drove a special #11 FedEx Cares paint scheme that highlighted 10 organizations: The American Red Cross, Autism Speaks, Direct Relief, the March of Dimes, Safe Kids, JA Worldwide, United Negro College Fund, FIRST, Arbor Day Foundation and St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. In the fall, Hamlin visited Memphis and teamed up with the NBA's Grizzlies point guard — and fellow #11 — Mike Conley for a basketball shooting contest on Veterans Day to raise money for the USO. Hamlin also stopped by the Target House, a long-term housing facility in the St. Jude network, to meet with children for a fun afternoon of painting. Hamlin donated $11,000 to St. Jude through the Denny Hamlin Foundation as part of the program.

2014: 2014 marked the seventh-consecutive season that Hamlin and the FedEx Racing Team raised awareness for the March of Dimes and March for Babies initiatives. The special #11 FedEx Office/March of Dimes paint scheme raced at Texas Motor Speedway in April, and the team hosted 2014 March of Dimes national ambassador Aidan Lamothe at the track. Additionally, during the fourth-annual FedEx 400 benefiting Autism Speaks at Dover (Del.), the entire #11 team filled a FedEx truck full of toys from a nearby Toys "R" Us and donated them to Autism Delaware for use during the race weekend inside a special hospitality area designated for families with children with autism. The toys were selected from the Toys "R" Us "10 Toys that Speak to Autism" list that the company establishes each year with Autism Speaks. FedEx also helped raise funds for Autism Speaks through a special program allowing fans to have their names printed on the #11 FedEx Freight/Autism Speaks Toyota for an $11 donation.

2013: Denny Hamlin and the FedEx Racing Team again used the NASCAR platform to raise awareness for charitable organizations, including special #11 paint schemes for the March of Dimes at Texas in April and Autism Speaks at Dover in June, in conjunction with the FedEx 400 benefiting Autism Speaks race weekend. In September, the March of Dimes recognized Hamlin with its highest honor, the prestigious Champion for Babies Award. Hamlin became just the fourth recipient of the award, joining Pro Football Hall of Famer Joe Namath, golf legend Arnold Palmer and veteran broadcaster Greg Gumbel. Hamlin accepted the award at the March of Dimes Volunteer Leadership Conference and Gala in Washington, D.C.

Joining the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the American Red Cross, FedEx, Hamlin and Joe Gibbs helped spread the message of disaster preparedness around the annual America's Small Business Summit. Speaking to news media and small business owners, Hamlin and Gibbs provided critical information for small business owners to better respond to emergencies and ensure the safety of employees and customers.

2012: The FedEx Racing Team highlighted immediate relief and ongoing recovery efforts following major disasters that struck different parts of the country. Prior to the race at Talladega (Ala.) Superspeedway in May, Hamlin and the #11 FedEx crew members visited nearby Tuscaloosa, Ala., on the one-year anniversary of the devastating tornadoes that ripped through the area in 2011. FedEx helped donate and deliver appliances to the first house rebuilt in the Alberta City neighborhood, and made a $10,000 donation to the local chapter of The Salvation Army.

In the fall, "Superstorm" Sandy caused extensive damage along the east coast, including major flooding and power outages in New York City and surrounding areas. In addition to the tireless efforts of FedEx team members who volunteered their time to get much-needed supplies into the area, Hamlin and the #11 crew flew into Newark, N.J., prior to NASCAR's season finale at Homestead-Miami Speedway, to pitch in. The team helped unload a truck full of supplies donated by FedEx to the Community FoodBank of New Jersey, volunteered at the facility and delivered a truck full of frozen turkeys to a food shelter in the area one week before Thanksgiving.

Also during the NASCAR season, FedEx helped raise awareness for the March of Dimes with a special #11 FedEx Office/March of Dimes paint scheme at Texas in April, and Autism Speaks through its title sponsorship of the FedEx 400 benefiting Autism Speaks at Dover (Del.) International Speedway in June.

2011: Disaster preparedness was again the program's focus in 2011, as the "Race to Prepare" initiative reached local communities near San Francisco, Louisville, Kansas City and Dallas. FedEx made a $10,000 donation to each of the local chapters of the American Red Cross in those markets, and to date, more than 1,000 children have participated in the program. At Texas Motor Speedway in April, Hamlin ran a specially designed #11 FedEx/March of Dimes Toyota to raise awareness for the organization. The car was designed by Dallas-area twins and healthy survivors of the March of Dimes program, who traveled to Joe Gibbs Racing in Huntersville, N.C., and with the help of Hamlin, designed the car from a blank white canvas.

2009/2010: With disaster relief and preparedness as the program's focus, Hamlin and the #11 team joined FedEx to present new Disaster Response Units (DRU) to the Salvation Army chapters in Washington, D.C. and Boston, and then worked with the American Red Cross for "Race to Prepare" workshops with school-aged children in Indianapolis, Richmond, Philadelphia, Chicago and Atlanta. The events focused attention on the simple steps families can take to prepare themselves for disasters of all types, while featuring fun racing-themed activities.

2010 also marked another year working with the March of Dimes. In addition to racing a special #11 March of Dimes Toyota at Phoenix International Raceway in April, FedEx and Hamlin worked to raise awareness for the March of Dimes by encouraging financial support of the March for Babies walks.

2008: FedEx supported community service agencies in Boston, Washington D.C., Indianapolis and Los Angeles to assist with their mission of providing food to those in need. Hamlin and the #11 FedEx Racing Team delivered new Toyota Prius hybrid vehicles to the agencies on behalf of FedEx, enabling them to more efficiently serve their communities while supporting a continued commitment to new technologies. Each visit also brought large groups of FedEx team members who volunteered their time to assist the groups.

Also in 2008, FedEx Racing teamed up with the March of Dimes to support the annual March for Babies. After a kick-off event in Dallas, Hamlin raced a special #11 March of Dimes paint scheme in Phoenix. The event raised awareness and funds for the organization.

2007: The FedEx commitment to children's health initiatives came to life in the form of the FedEx "Wear Your Heart on Your Helmet" program. Over the course of the season, FedEx worked with children's hospitals in seven NASCAR race markets, and also with the Make-A-Wish Foundation, to find patients interested in designing the race helmet Hamlin would wear in 11 NASCAR Cup Series races.

The creativity of the children led to great designs that renowned helmet designer Jason Beam then transferred onto the helmets Hamlin wore on the race track. Following the season, all 11 race-worn helmets were put up for auction and cumulatively raised more than $20,000 to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis.

By season's end, Hamlin and the FedEx team had visited children's hospitals in Los Angeles, Richmond, Dallas, Boston, Chicago and Kansas City while meeting with Make-A-Wish program participants at several races throughout the season. FedEx generously presented each participating hospital with a donation of $25,000, and presented the Make-A-Wish Foundation with a donation of $50,000.

2006: Denny Hamlin and the FedEx Racing Team made special deliveries to five children's hospitals, where Hamlin was presented with specially designed helmets for him to wear in Cup Series races in the hospital's home market. In addition to donations on behalf of FedEx for $25,000, the events featured activities for the patients and staff.

"Wear Your Heart on Your Helmet" supported the Make-A-Wish Foundation and St. Jude.

Denny Hamlin — Biography

Denny Hamlin		Driver, #11 FedEx Toyota Camry
Birthdate:	November 18, 1980	Height: 6'0"
Hometown:	Chesterfield, Va.	Weight: 175
Resides: Charlotte, N.C.

Denny Hamlin enters his 15th full season driving the #11 FedEx Toyota in the NASCAR Cup Series in 2020 with Joe Gibbs Racing and second-year crew chief Chris Gabehart.

Hamlin has won 37 races in 506 career starts at stock-car racing's highest level since bursting onto the scene with two victories and "Rookie of the Year" honors in 2006. The 39-year-old Chesterfield, Va., native has scored 161 top-five and 259 top-10 finishes and contended in the NASCAR Cup Series Playoffs in 13 of 14 years behind the wheel of the #11 car.

2019 was a statement season for Hamlin and rookie crew chief Gabehart. After registering no wins in 2018, the veteran driver rebounded in forceful fashion to score six wins on the year, including his second Daytona 500 victory – a win that was dedicated to the memory of J.D. Gibbs. The co-founder of Joe Gibbs Racing and son of Coach Joe Gibbs, J.D. had passed away one month earlier from a degenerative neurological disease.

Hamlin's successful 2019 season also included 19 top-five and 24 top-10 finishes – both career season-highs – and three Busch Pole Awards. He capped off the year with a Championship 4 berth in the season-finale race at Homestead-Miami Speedway, where he drove to a fourth-place finish in the point standings. Hamlin now boasts an impressive 33 career poles, the third-highest record among active Cup Series drivers.

Hamlin collected 10 top-five and 17 top-10 finishes during the 2018 season that earned him an 11th-place finish in the 2018 NASCAR Cup Series standings. He added four Coors Light Pole Awards to his résumé, including a first-place starting spot for the Series' finale race at Homestead-Miami Speedway for the second-consecutive year.

Hamlin jumpstarted his 2017 campaign by collecting his third career Duel victory (2008, 2014) during Daytona "Speedweeks," eventually scoring two more regular season wins after dominating performances at New Hampshire Motor Speedway and Darlington Raceway. He also added two Coors Light Pole Awards to his season accomplishments – one at Charlotte Motor Speedway during the Playoffs and one during the season-finale race weekend at Homestead-Miami.

Overall, Hamlin tied career-bests with 15 top-five and 22 top-10 finishes en route to finishing sixth in the 2017 NASCAR Cup Series standings.

His 2016 season began triumphantly when he claimed the prestigious Daytona 500 win – his first-ever Daytona victory – in a historic finish, edging out Martin Truex Jr. by .01 seconds. Hamlin went on to score two more wins during the 2016 season with Mike Wheeler guiding the #11 FedEx team towards victory lane. He notched his first road course win at Watkins Glen (N.Y.) after seizing the lead with only 10 laps remaining, and saw success at his home track, Richmond, with a Coors Light Pole Award and Federated Auto Parts 400 win in overtime.

Hamlin also won the season-opening Sprint Unlimited exhibition race for the second time in three years, adding his third Sprint Unlimited win to his résumé. He finished sixth in the 2016 Cup Series points standings.

Hamlin won a pair of races in 2015, including his fifth career victory at Martinsville (Va.) Speedway and the Chase opener at Chicagoland (Ill.) Speedway, advancing to the Challenger Round of the playoffs and finishing ninth in the final point standings. At Martinsville in March, Hamlin held off a hard-charging Brad Keselowski to the finish line to clinch a Chase berth. A late-race strategy call gave Hamlin a front row spot on the final restart, and he motored past Jeff Gordon for the lead and win.

Hamlin was also victorious in the prestigious Sprint All-Star Race at Charlotte (N.C.) Motor Speedway in May; he captured three Coors Light Pole Awards and secured 20 top-10 finishes.

Hamlin had an up-and-down 2014 season that saw him advance all the way to the Championship 4 at Homestead-Miami (Fla.) Speedway in the new, knockout-style Chase format.

Hamlin started the season off strong, with back-to-back wins in a pair of exhibition restrictor-plate races at Daytona (Fla.) International Speedway. First, he led in every segment and held off the field in the Sprint Unlimited, his second victory in the event (2006). He followed that up with a win in the Duel qualifying race, also his second (2008), which gave him a second row starting position in the Daytona 500. Hamlin fell just one spot short of becoming the first driver to sweep “SpeedWeeks” when he crossed the finish line second to Dale Earnhardt Jr. in the “Great American Race.”

Once the Cup Series got into the bulk of the schedule, the FedEx Racing Team overcame many hurdles to position them for a Chase berth. Hamlin missed the race at Auto Club (Calif.) Speedway in March after what was later discovered to be a piece of metal in his eye, and during the summer, Hamlin and the team were docked 75 points for a rules infraction after finishing third at Indianapolis. However, the new Chase format announced at the beginning of the year would include each race winner from the regular season.

That win came for Hamlin at Talladega (Ala.) Superspeedway in May. Despite a 34th-place starting position, Hamlin immediately moved towards the front and led for the first time on lap 32. In total, he led 12 of 188 laps, and held the lead when caution came out for a wreck behind him, freezing the field and giving Hamlin his first career points-paying restrictor-plate victory.

In the new Chase format, the FedEx Racing Team embodied the “survive and advance” strategy to move on after each of the three race segments. The team got stronger as the Chase progressed, and as other drivers were eliminated during the first nine weeks of the playoffs, Hamlin found himself among the final four competitors — alongside Kevin Harvick, Ryan Newman and Joey Logano — vying for the 2014 crown. During a thrilling final race in South Florida, Hamlin led 50 of 267 laps, and swapped places at the front of the field with each of the championship-contending drivers. During a caution with 15 laps remaining, crew chief Darian Grubb elected to keep the #11 machine on the track while others pitted, moving the FedEx team up to second for the ensuing restart.

Hamlin passed Jeff Gordon in Turn 2 for the lead on older tires, and needed the race to run green to the checkered flag in hopes of holding off the hard-charging Harvick and Newman on fresher rubber. Unfortunately, a pair of late-race yellows foiled the FedEx team’s strategy, and Hamlin was eventually gobbled up by drivers that pitted, finishing a disappointing seventh. Harvick went on to win the race and the championship, followed by runner-up Newman. Hamlin finished third in the final point standings, tied for his second-best season finish with his 2006 rookie year.

Hamlin and the FedEx team had a disappointing 2013 campaign that saw the Virginia native miss four races due to a back injury and miss qualifying for the Chase for the Cup championship for the first time in his career.

The season did end on a positive note, as Hamlin was victorious in the finale at Homestead-Miami (Fla.) Speedway, extending his number of consecutive seasons with at least one victory to eight. Hamlin also recorded a series-high five poles in 2013.

Hamlin suffered a fractured vertebra in a last-lap crash at Auto Club (Calif.) Speedway on March 24 and missed the following four races, snapping his streak of 264 straight races in the #11 machine. He returned to action at Talladega (Ala.) Superspeedway in May, driving the first 24 laps before giving way to substitute driver Brian Vickers. Top-five finishes at Darlington (S.C.) and Charlotte in Hamlin’s first two full races back gave the team optimism for a potential Chase “wild card” berth, but a long stretch of misfortune through the summer months dashed those hopes.

Hamlin tallied four top-five finishes and eight top-10 results in 32 starts in 2013, leading 363 laps and finishing 23rd in the final Cup Series point standings.

Hamlin enjoyed a rebound year in 2012, tying the series-high with five victories in his first campaign with new crew chief Grubb. The duo got off to a fast start, winning at Phoenix in just their second race together. Hamlin secured his second victory at Kansas in April, the 199th NASCAR win for car #11, making it the winningest number in series history after passing the famed #43.

Back-to-back wins at Bristol (Tenn.) and Atlanta at the end of the regular season gave Hamlin and the FedEx team the top seed heading into the 10-race Chase playoff. Hamlin scored one win (New Hampshire) and two runner-up finishes in the Chase to end the season sixth in the final point standings.

Hamlin recorded three poles in 2012 – including at historic Indianapolis Motor Speedway – and his final win of the season at New Hampshire was the 100th Cup Series victory for Joe Gibbs Racing.

In 2011, the #11 team’s lone win came at Michigan International Speedway in June, when a two-tire stop put Hamlin in front of the pack for a late-race restart, and he was able to hold off Matt Kenseth en route to victory lane. The victory enabled Hamlin to secure a “wild card” berth in the Chase, and he finished ninth in the final standings.

Hamlin set the Cup Series alight in 2010, winning a series-high eight races, putting the FedEx Racing Team among the elite in the garage. Winning frequently, and on a wide variety of tracks, Hamlin held the points lead heading into the Chase before ultimately finishing second by the slimmest of margins. Season highlights included a late-race charge at Martinsville (Va.) that elevated the #11 team to a serious contender after a slow start to the season, two signature wins on the high banks of Texas Motor Speedway that helped stamp the team’s authority on the series, and emotional wins at both Pocono (Pa.) and Richmond. The season was not without its fair share of drama off the track as well, as Hamlin fought through a serious knee injury and subsequent surgery during the 36-race schedule.

The 2009 Cup Series season proved to be a coming-of-age campaign for Hamlin and the #11 team. A leadership role within Joe Gibbs Racing and a desire to turn continued success into a championship saw Hamlin make a late-season charge to lock up a spot in NASCAR’s post-season, but Chase wins at Martinsville (Va.) and Homestead (Fla.) were ultimately negated by on-track problems in Fontana (Calif.), Charlotte (N.C.) and Talladega (Ala.). Hamlin finished the season fifth in the point standings, setting then career-best marks for wins, top-five finishes and total laps led. His impressive victories on various circuits proved Hamlin and his team were well positioned to be the primary challengers to reigning champion Jimmie Johnson moving forward.

The 2008 Cup season was, by any definition, a season of change. As Joe Gibbs Racing made the move to a new manufacturer in Toyota, the Cup Series made the full-time move to the Car of Tomorrow, and Hamlin welcomed Kyle Busch as a teammate. The #11 FedEx team was hoping that change would also come in the form of a series championship effort. Despite making the Chase for the NASCAR Cup in both 2006 and 2007, the onus was on the team to translate regular season success into a charge down the stretch.

The spring race at Richmond (Va.) International Raceway highlighted both the satisfaction of fully dominating an event and the speed with which that dominance can be undone. Hamlin started the 400-lap event from the pole and led an impressive 381 laps before a cut tire forced him to pit road with only 19 laps to go. A win on a cold, rainy day in Martinsville (Va.) earned Hamlin his sole Cup triumph of the season and a long-coveted Grandfather clock trophy. As Hamlin marched to his third-consecutive Chase, the team was hoping to avoid the letdown that marked the 2007 edition, but alas, it was not to be.

After a mechanical failure in Dover (Del.) and a tremendous hit following a cut tire at Talladega (Ala.), Hamlin was all but eliminated from championship contention and finished the year in eighth place.

The 2007 season built on a wildly successful 2006 rookie campaign and helped solidify Hamlin and the #11 team’s status as a perennial championship contender. Hamlin quickly allayed fears that he would fall victim to the dreaded “sophomore slump” by kicking off the season with a string of solid results that catapulted him into the top-five in points.

Denny Hamlin won the historic night race at Bristol during a five-win season in 2012.

Hamlin's lone 2007 win came at New Hampshire Motor Speedway in July when a late-race two-tire change gave him the track position he needed and the opportunity to hold off Jeff Gordon en route to victory lane. On several occasions in 2007, dominating performances by Hamlin and the team were nullified by pit road mishaps, mechanical problems or penalties, yet the #11 team still maintained championship aspirations and a place near the top of the standings. Hamlin posted 12 top-five finishes and 18 top-10 results throughout the year, but ultimately settled for 12th place in the final standings.

In 2006, Hamlin burst onto the scene with a win in the prestigious Budweiser Shootout exhibition race at Daytona International Speedway, and carried that early momentum into one of the most successful rookie campaigns in NASCAR history.

On his way to becoming the first rookie to earn a spot in the Chase for the championship, Hamlin posted his first career Cup Series victory in dominating style at Pocono (Pa.) Raceway. He captured three pole awards, finished third in the final point standings and earned 2006 "Rookie of the Year" honors.

Hamlin's ascension to the highest levels of NASCAR came through a combination of skill, perseverance, a little bit of luck and a knack for delivering strong performances when given the opportunity. Each of Hamlin's "debuts" has come with caveats of additional opportunities (in the form of more races or permanent employment) should he meet or beat expectations, and he has absolutely shone in those instances. In his first NASCAR Truck Series race, Hamlin drove the Gibbs Performance Chevrolet to a 10th-place finish at Indianapolis Raceway Park on Aug. 6, 2004. Three months later, making his debut in the Busch (now Xfinity) Series at Darlington (S.C.) Raceway, he recorded an eighth-place finish for JGR.

With Hamlin on his way to a fifth-place finish in the standings during his rookie Busch Series campaign, he was offered the unexpected opportunity to run the #11 FedEx Chevrolet at the end of the 2005 Cup Series season. Hamlin wasted no time in displaying his talent, posting three top-10 finishes in seven starts and winning the pole in Phoenix. His performances over the seven races he ran at the end of 2005 made him an easy choice to fill the seat of the #11 FedEx car for 2006.

In addition to his success at the Cup level, Hamlin has put together an impressive résumé in the Xfinity Series. He made his debut in 2004 and spent nearly three full seasons behind the wheel of the #20 Joe Gibbs Racing Chevrolet, before making the transition to Toyota for JGR, Braun Racing and CJM beginning in 2008. In 161 total starts, Hamlin has racked up 17 wins and 21 poles.

Hamlin now finds himself at the highest level of NASCAR, but he has been winning races since the age of seven when he began his career racing karts in the Junior Sportsman League. From the kart tracks of Virginia to the Cup Series, Hamlin has proved he can succeed at any level.

In 2000, he was named "Rookie of the Year" at Southside Speedway in Richmond, Va., posting 11 top-five finishes that year. Just three years later, Hamlin celebrated his finest season in Late Models, recording 25 wins, 30 poles and 33 top-five finishes.

In 1997, at age 16, Hamlin hit the track for his first season driving a Mini Stock car. The year was a resounding success as Hamlin became the youngest driver to win the NASCAR Mini Stock track championship at Langley (Va.) Speedway, and was named the 1997 NASCAR Mini Stock "Rookie of the Year."

Hamlin was dominating in the Junior Restricted League at age 12, earning the titles Amelia Motor Raceway track champion (junior restricted), Virginia Dirt Karting Association State Champion (Junior Champ) and World Karting Association Virginia Dirt Series State Champion (Junior Champ). He finished his kart career at age 15 with 127 feature wins and five championships in three classes.

Away from the track, Hamlin stays active – whether playing golf, basketball or working out – and spending time with family and friends. He remains a committed fan of Virginia Tech and the Washington Redskins, and can be found courtside for Charlotte Hornets home games. Hamlin has two daughters, Taylor (7) and Molly (2).

Chris Gabehart — Biography

Chris Gabehart		Crew Chief, #11 FedEx Toyota
Birthdate: May 16, 1981	Spouse: Jen
Hometown: Louisville, Ky.
Resides: Mooresville, N.C.

Chris Gabehart enters his second season at the helm of the #11 FedEx Racing Team in 2020. His rookie crew chief season with driver Denny Hamlin in 2019 was a solid success, with the team earning six wins and a shot at a championship in the season-ending finale. Gabehart's first points race with the team ended in victory lane, with Hamlin taking the checkered flag in the season-opening Daytona 500.

Gabehart honed his crew chief skills within the Joe Gibbs Racing system before making his Cup debut. Having previously served as a crew chief in JGR's Xfinity Series program, Gabehart captured nine wins in three seasons leading the Nos. 20 and 19 Xfinity Series teams.

From a young age Gabehart watched his grandfather and father race, which ignited his own desire to get behind the wheel of a car. By the time he was 10, he was competing in go-karts. After competing in late model races throughout the country, he ended his tenure as a driver. It was then that he realized he wanted to continue pursuing a career in racing, just not behind the wheel.

In the years following his graduation from Purdue University, where he earned a degree in mechanical engineering, Gabehart connected with Tom Busch (father of JGR driver Kyle Busch), and eventually was named crew chief for the Kyle Busch Motorsports Late Model team for 2010. After building a reputation for himself at Kyle Busch Motorsports working on the Late Model program and filling in as an engineer in the Truck Series, Gabehart was invited to be an engineer on Busch's Cup team for the 2012 season – an opportunity Gabehart knew he had to take, ultimately leading him to Joe Gibbs Racing.

Gabehart lives in Mooresville, N.C., with his wife, Jen.

Joe Gibbs — Biography

Joe Gibbs

Owner, Joe Gibbs Racing

As Owner of Joe Gibbs Racing (JGR) and former head coach of the Washington Redskins, Joe Gibbs has a Hall of Fame history in two of the top sports in the United States – the National Football League and NASCAR.

Gibbs, who won three Super Bowl titles during his first stint as Redskins coach from 1981-1992, formed Joe Gibbs Racing in July 1991 with business partner Don Meredith. Under Joe Gibbs' ownership, JGR has won five NASCAR Cup Series titles (2000, 2002, 2005, 2015 and 2019). JGR has also won the Daytona 500 with Denny Hamlin (2) and Dale Jarrett, earned five Brickyard 400 trophies and scored 176 NASCAR Cup Series wins.

In addition to his Cup Championships and Super Bowl victories, Gibbs was named NFL's "Coach of the Year" in 1982, 1983 and 1991 and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1996. After returning the Redskins to prominence in his second stint as head coach, he retired from coaching in January 2008.

Gibbs was inducted into the NASCAR Hall of Fame in January 2020 for his history of accomplishments in racing. He is the only person inducted into both the NASCAR and Pro Football Halls of Fame.

He and his wife, Pat, reside in Cornelius, N.C.

#11 Racing History

There are certain numbers in sports that are forever associated with success. These numbers are synonymous with great champions, winning teams and unforgettable moments.

FedEx and Joe Gibbs Racing (JGR) brought the #11 back to the track in 2005 and it, too, holds an important place in NASCAR lore.

Fully expecting to add more great moments to its already impressive history, FedEx and JGR delivered great results over the past 15 seasons, and are looking to add more in 2020.

All-Time Wins

The #11 has scored 217 victories in NASCAR's premier division, the winningest car number in NASCAR history.

All-Time Pole Awards

Cars carrying the #11 have started from the pole more than any other number in NASCAR history with 162 times.

First Win

Parnelli Jones won the first race in the #11 car, taking the checkered flag in Bremerton, Wash., on Aug. 4, 1957.

Last Win

Denny Hamlin drove the #11 Toyota to victory lane at ISM Raceway on Nov. 10, 2019.

First Race

Skimp Hersey drove a 1947 Ford carrying the #11 to an 18th-place finish at Charlotte Motor Speedway on June 19, 1947.

Drivers

Seven NASCAR Hall of Famers have won at least one race driving the #11, including Ned Jarrett, Cale Yarborough, Darrell Waltrip, Bill Elliott, Junior Johnson, Bobby Allison and Terry Labonte.

Personal Significance

J.D. Gibbs, president of Joe Gibbs Racing, wore #11 during his football career from 1987-1990 at The College of William & Mary.
